Abortion vote deal reached for now

By ASHER WALLFISH and SARAH HONIG Jarusalem Post Reporters

The Likud and Agudat Yisrael patched up their short-lived quarrel over the vote on the controversial Abortion Law amendment last night with an agreement that the vote would be beld before the end of the Bot whetsvar was meant, the crisis, sparked by Sunday night's decision of Aguda's political committee to force the issue, was dissipated when the Likud leaders con-vinced the Aguda that they needed more time to mobilize a sure majority for the amendment.

The amendment would abolish a woman's right to request an abortion from the health services for socio-economic reasons. Aguda Yisrael got a promise that this provision would be ended, in return for their joining the Begin coalltion more than Aguda men told The Post last night that they could not understand the medie's excitement yesterday over their faction'e enpport for the eabinet reshuffls being conditional on the coalition pushing through the anti-abortion legislation.

"Both issuas were estiled in a positive atmosphere," Lorincz told The Post with a emile. Aguda men supported government legislation enabling Ehrlich to become a eecond deputy premiar, on its first reading

Postponement of the abortion vote to the end of the month does not necessarily mean that tension will not riss again to a peak if the Likud fails to muster its majority when tho crucial time comes.

Yesterday's developments in the Likud-Aguda tiff resembled a series of cliffhanger episodee, taking place bour by hour, which illuminated the basic problems of the two factions with regard to the law. The prineipals in the Abortion Law issue went from meeting to meeting between noon and 10 p.m. in an atmosphere of brinkmanship.

Lorines and his fellow Aguda MKs met with Prime Minister Begin to impress on him the need for his pereonal intervention in eccuring Liberal support for the amendment.

Begin reportedly cautioned them against an early vote.

Liberals opposed Yobezkiel Flomin, one of the amendment's opponents, eald it was not likely that he and like-minded Gideon Patt and Avraham Katz cosponsored the hill in the last Knesset and Flomin says he cannot change his stand on a bill bearing his signature. At least five Liberals are said to be opposed to any tampering with the bill.

Likud insiders say that there are 52 supporters for the amendment, and 51 declared opponents, but the vote could swing either way.

Some Likud members yesterday tried to helittle Aguda threats to leave the ecalition. They argued that Aguda might officially leave the coalition but it would continue to vote for it, fearing to lose support for Aguda schools and other institutions. Aguda also fears losing Lorinez' position as chairman of the Knesset Finance Committee and Shlomo Gross's seat on the Knesset Defence and Foreign Affairs Committee, eccording to Likud sources.

part ways with the Likud government are Aguda followers of the Gerrer rebbe, who to considered a political moderate. The rehhe is said to want Aguda to leeve the coalition and feels that the abortion issue to the best pretext, since it would be possible to unite all Aguda factions on this issue.

The National Religious Party yesterday urged all coalition parties to raily round the amendment.

Ministers bring home oil price agreement

Defence Minister Ezer Weizman and Energy Minister Yitzhak Moda'i returned home from Cairo yesterday with an apparent compromise agreement on the price of Sinai oil to be sold to Israel by Egypt.

The compromise, which is to be between the guldelince of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and the spot market price at Rotterdam (roughly a difference of $10 a harrel) was reportedly brought about personally by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The two ministere told reporters on their arrival at Ben-Gurion Airport that "It'e possible to eay that the oll matter is virtually resolved."
Weizman added, "We can say that the matter is on the road to being closed. We'll have to report to the government, however, before any details can he released. Weizman and Moda'l reportedly Energy Ministry sourcee told The Jerusalem Post last night that the protracted negotiations by Weizman had been conducted with the "complets agreement" of Moda'l and that the need for the latter's visit to Cairo to iron out technical details bad long been foreseen in principle if not in timing.

The sources said the agreement would link the price of the oil in some manner to OPEC's prices and would not be open to market fluctostions. Israel had consistently held out for pricing of Egyptian oil according to OPEC prices, while Egypt had maintained that it would eeli oll to Israel at whatever price the market would

Ophira residents blockade Tiran

OPHIRA. - Fifty Ophira residents In diving gear and hathing cuits yesterday blocked the Straits of Tiran for several honre with a motley of pleasure boats and fishing

They stopped two freighters apparently salling from Akaba and an Israel Navy landing craft which had arrived from Ellat — before giving up. The army had threatened to open the international waterway by force unless the demonstrators left.

The residents said they blockaded the atraits in protest against footdragging in negotiations over compensation they will get for quitting their town Ophira which is to be returned to Egypt by 1982.

According to their account, they had taken all their boats - four 50ton vessels, a 10-ton vessel and ecven or eight amall fiehing boats - and salled out of Ophira at 5 a.m. yesterday. They stopped at a pier in Na'ama, where they loaded barrels which they planned to float in the water. Then they sailed through the rough sea to the narrow passage way at 9 a.m.

Ehrlich moves a step closer to deputy premiership

Post Knessat Reporter

The Knesset last night paved the way for the appointment of Finance Minister Simha Ehrlich as a second deputy prime minister when it referred to the Law Committee the government's amendment to the Basic Law: the Cahinet. The bill will probably pass its second and third readings today.

The vote was 54-48. Two Democratic Movement deputies — Shlomo Eliahu and Mordecbal Elgrahli — voted with the opposition against the bill, while a third, Akiva Nof, abstained, Agudat Yisrael voted for the government and the rest of the MKs voted according to coalition and opposition lines.

The amendment was necessary because the law currently permits the appointment of only a single deputy prime minister.

The hill was presented by Minister without Portfolio Moshe Nissim. whose hrief speech was punctuated by heckling, joking and laughing in the Alignment henches. Nissim said little more than that the government saw nothing wrong in having two deputy premiers.

In the debato, Gad Ya'acobi

(Alignment-Labour) called the bill, which he dubbed "the Ehrlich law", "an attempt to administer artificial respiration to a dying government. Ehrlieh'e unwillingness to eet-tle for an appointment as minister without portfolio is no reeson for amending a Basic Law," he sald. Ehnd Olmert (Likud-La'am) conceded that the amendment had not been motivated by "any principle, any world view, any ideology." He devoted most of his speech, however, to praising Ehrlieh's achievements. Mosbe Amar (Alignment-Mapam) sald the bill was designed merely to compensate Ehrlich for his having been made tha seapegoat for the failures of the antire government.

Mordochai Virshuhski (Shai) regretted that the government had been unable to find a hetter solution to the problem of "what to with Ehrlich" then this "chameful disrespect" for a basic law.

Gidoon Hansner (Independent Liberals) said that the basic laws constituted the framework of a constitution and should not be amended to serve transient coalition needs.

The Allgnment and Shai factions issued a joint communique protesting the decision of the coalition to refer the bill to the full Law Committee (headed by David Glass of the National Religious Party) rather than to the subcommittee on basic laws (headed by Virshuhakl). This was contrary to all precedent,

The Defence Ministry has been examining alternative sites, but Deputy Defence Minister Mordechal Zipori last night refused to say whether it has located any available land near Nablus. Former U.S. officials urge U.S.-PLO contacts

By WOLF BLITZER Jerusalem Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — A privato panei largely consisting of former senior U.S. government officials hes called for "informal contacts" hetween the U.S. and the Palestine Liberation Organization as well as an agreement between Israel and Syria 'roughly on the model of the Israeil-Egyptian settlement."

The 39-page report just issued by the Atlantic Council's special working group on the Middle East also predicted that discussion and negotiation of the Palestinian question and other aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict "will prohably subject Israell-American relations to considerable strain."

The panel'e findings are already being compared here to the highly publicized report released in 1975 hy the Brookings Institution, which had a marked impact on the Carter administration'e policy.

With the exception of its section on the PLO, most of the Atlantic Council's recommendations are consistent with current U.S. policy and are not very controversial. The makeup of the working group guarantees that the report will be

Kenneth Rush, another former under-secretary of atate who is currently chairman of the Atlantic Council, said in a foreword to the report that the recommendations were made with the hope that they "might be useful to our government and our people."

The report said that American diplomacy "should devote its best efforts to gulding the current negotlations with Egypt and Israel toward a real autonomy and selfdetermination for the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza."

It noted that "the question of the Arab Palestinians - full autonomy. a homeland, participation in the determination of their future. national scif-determination. whatever one eails it - remains at the heart of the Arab-Israell conflict. "The United States," it continued. "having involved itself to the hilt in

"On the level of substance, we do not see any solution possible unless the negotiators take up the hard questions of Paisstinian selfdetermination together with those rslating to horders and security arrangements, aiming at an eventual total package that can reconcile Palestinlan rights to selfgovernment with Israel's right to security."

The report sald, "We do not think that this is the moment to bring the PLO into active nagotiations. Iran cancels U.S., Soviet military pacts TEHERAN (Reuter). - The Iranian government yesterday cancelled treaties with the U.B. and the Soviet . Union which theoretically give the superpowers the right to intervene militarily in Iran.

Inspite of its simple construction, (the illustration is quite sufficient as do-it-yourself instruction) this Swiss lounge chair has an easily adjustable angle and even a built-in spring suspension. It can be arranged to form sociable circles or it can be set in remote spots. (So remote that you see only mountain peaks, glaciers and the azure vault of heaven.) Salisbury cuts flow of relief aid to Zambia

SALISBURY (UPI). — Bishop Abei Muzorewa'e government, tightening its etranglehoid on Zambia, yester-day halted the relief flow of maize through Zimbabwe Rhodesia to that food-starved country. A statement issued by the cabinet office said Zimbabws Rhodesia will no longer allow corn from South Africa to pass through this country on its way to Zambia because the Zambia government has failed to put a stop to incursions by Zambla-based black guerrillas.

The announcement was issued less than a month after Zimbabwe Rhodeslan commandos blew up a vital bridge on the Tazara railway linking Zambia and Tanzania in an operation that left Zimbabws Rhodesia as landlocked Zambla's principal gateway for imports and

The two moves are eeen by foreign analysts in southern Africa as a clear attempt to pressure Zambie into forcing the guerrillas and their bosts to come to an agreement acceptable to Sailsbury in the talks now under way in London. Thousands of guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's wing of the Patriotic Front Alliance are based in Zambia and in recent weeks have made numerous attempts to cross the Zambezi River so as to have greater territorial influence once a cease-fire is worked out in London.

Herbs for the home

OUR BODIES are pitifully prone to burt and disease, but as if to restore the balanca, nature has, with lavish hands, given us herbs as the means of bealing. Knowledge of the baaling power of herbs began with the dawn of humanity, when the first handful of leaves was used to staunch the wounds of primitive man.

Since than, herbs have come to be used widely not only for the bealing capacity but in cooking for their taste and aroma, and in cosmetics for their fragrance and other proper-

Healing and perfuming berbs were described in ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics and herbs and flowers are mentioned in many chapters of the Bihle, bearing witness to the knowledge of natural medicine and cosmatics among the ancient peoples of the Middle East.

But berb culture and preparation of medicines and perfumes was not a monopoly of the ancient Egyptians and Jews. Ancient people of the New World, the Incas in Peru, the Aztecs in Mexico. and the Mayas of Central America, the famous medicinez of the American Indians, used herbs for healing and as incense in

In the Far East herbs were used for different purposes. Marco Polo (1254-1823), the Venetian explorer. who spent 25 years in Asia, returned with many medicinal herhs and spices, which later became popular in Europe. During the Renaissancs, medicinal herbs were grown by monks behind monastary walls. These plants which often grew in ornamental flower heds and decorative containers, ware the first medicines.

Generally speaking, herbs as they are known and used today, are plants that are valuable for their essential oils and are used for cooking, fragrances, madicines, dyes and industrial purposes. In the flower gar-den, their foliage is as appealing as their blooms. In the kitchen garden, they are as aromatic and beautiful as they are edible.

During the Elizabethan period (1558-1603), the herb garden hecamo part of the landscape garden. Today you may find old new reconstruc-tions of such gardens in European public parks, and even in monasteries and church gardens in Jerusalem. On the Mount of Olives or in Ein Kerem herh gardens serve the same purpose as those created 400 yeare ago.

bourgeois, not particularly bright, and terribly near-sighted (physically and socially), they finally humble their way into bed, marriage and children—the "whole catastrophe," The "sympathetic couple," Luc and Eva, seem out of place in this world of sexually dominated nincompoops. They are nice, intelligent people who love, like and respect each other. They treat each other like human heings, instead of sex objects, and despite the routine problems of life, they are nice normal people.

Francols' chauvinist dreams generally come true, invariably in the victimization of his mistress and his match in a psychiatric patient with strong feelings about castration. Leo's and Julie's dreams become banal for them and for the audience, and one wonders why director Schulmann hothered to share them with us. Luc and Eva. might make excellent subjects for a nice little movie about nice people hut the only chuckles they contribute to the film is with their cat. Whom they have named Clitoris.

There may be a few laughs in the film if you can stay awake long enough to find them.

OUT OF a cluster of interesting books that have come out in the autumn lists, there are two of particular interest; "Almonds and Raisins" (New English Library) is a first novel by Maisie Mosco. It recaptures the atmosphere of Manchester into which thousands of East European immigrants settled in the early days of the century; and "The Lions of Judah" (Macmillan). hy Ted Willis, is an ingenious and tightly written thriller about a plan conceived by Goering to assassinate leading American atomic scientists. What makes the plot ingenious is that he uses a handful of Jews to execute it - in return for saving the lives of 10,000 fellow Jews. Willis wrote the book, which he helieves is hased on a true incident, because he wanted to explode the myth of Jewish acquiescence during the war.
"I wanted," he said, "to write about the courage of the Jewish people."

THE BITTER-SWEETNESS of Michaelo's story had a match in the recordings of Bomba Tzur rebroadcast during the 50-minute "When Recorde were Round" (2nd Programme, 0900 hrs, Saturday). Nobody took Bomha very seriously while he was allve. Everybody loves him now, a year or so after his death (of cancer). A fat little man with a rasp in his voice, an uncanny sense of rhythm and a hlack humour, he forecast his tragic end. He was an expert on nostalgia, on times "when ices were low and morale was high and one couldn't throw a stone without hitting a Yekke..."

He is perhaps best known for his role in musicals (e.g. the cockney father in "My Fair Lady"). Perhaps he was making fun of himself in his ridiculing songs about love and death and food - hie three obsessions. He was, to my mind, a prince among the sad and gentle

Teller terminal speeds up banking by one third

By JOSEPH MORGENSTERN Post Finance Reporter

TEL AVIV. - About three years ago the First International Bank of Ieraei (FIBI) introduced the snifomet, the Hebrew term (from the word saif, branch) for what the trade calls the automated teller machine. The device allows the customer around-the-clock to enquire about his account, withdraw cash, make deposits, cash cheques and make account payments.

All the customer has to do is Identify himself to the system by inserting his special identity card and keying hie identification number. After that the automated teller machine is ready to carry out his instructions. The proliferation throughout the banking system of the automated teller is the best proof of its success. Now FIBI has introduced the first on-line, telier terminal eystem at its Kiryat Hamelacha branch in Tel

The system primarily consists of a keyboard display terminal operated by the teller. Responsibility for the operation of the system is in the hands of Mataf Industrial and Financial Computing Ltd., a FIBI subsidiary. During a visit to the FIBI branch, David Oueiei, Matar'e deputy general manager, and Ofer Rigbi, the technical department manager, explained the system's operation. The customer bands the teller a plastic identity card. The teller passes this through a siot, and almost instantly the display window lights up, as informetion appears.

The data provided includes the balance in the account, the four previoue transactions, whether deposits or withdrawals, and infor-mation regarding the client's approved overdraft status. The speed of the service is the most impressive feature of the eystem. During the actual demonstration the relaxed manner of the teller was impressive. He was able to answer all the clients' questions without having to resort to the paper shuffling formally required to check account balances. According to the Matai people the system has shown a one-third time

Another feature of the system is eeparate keyboard display terminal, which every customer can operate by himself to obtain up-to-date information about his account.

Mataf's offices are located in the same building as the FIBI branch. It is on the same floor as the central IBM computer system which keeps track of all of the bank'e operations.

Jack Winnett, Matal's managing director, said he hopes that next year one out of every four FIBI branches will have keyboard display terminals.

Teiler training with the system is a eimple matter, Winnett said. "One morning both of our tellers did not show up for work. We postponed opening the branch for 15 minutes, which was the time it took to train two additional tellers," he eaid. In the future the system will also be used for securities transactions and foreign currency business.

The yield reflects the difference between the "theoretical" value of bonds — based on the date of issue and current Co-L indexes plus accumulated interest — and the actual market price It is based on the assumption that future Co-L index increases will be zero. A negative yield indicates bonds sold at a premium, a positive figure bonds sold at a discount; (These prices are amofficial)

Where angels fear to tread

THE GOVERNMENT will today add a minister of information to its roster, as part of the long mooted reahuffle. Until now Moshe Nissim, who will take on the task, has been Minister without Portfolio in charge of government business on the floor of the Knesset.

Yet, even after the Cahinet decides on the new post, there will be some doubt about implementation.

The new ministry could acarcely be formed without the ecoperation of several existing departments. This is because Mr. Nissim's domain is to embrace both domestic and foreign hasbara, and hecause, unlike his one-time predecessors in that post, he is to be not merely a coordinator but also an initiator of polie les.

Thus the Education and Foreign Affairs Ministries have both heen asked to yield their own information divisions to the new administrative creature. They have both taken offence, but especially the Foreign Ministry.

Under its now departed head, this ministry already lost to others some major areas of its traditional concern. Now, it seems, advantage is being taken of the absence of a foreign minister (Mr. Begin is only acting that way) to shear it of its information services.

It is aimost hard to helieve that anyone would eare to take over from the Premier such an emaciated ahadow of this department's former self.

Assuming these difficulties are overcome, Mr. Nissim will stili have his work of explaining — or explaining away — Government policles (and practices) cut out for him.

Mr. Nissim, trained as an attorney, has shown himself in the Knesset an able apologist for the regime. But even he may find It a trifle daunting to persuade the people of this country that It Is only the "scorched earth" inherited from the Alignment that is delaying the advent of the inflation-free market utopla promised to them hy the Likud leaders. Presumably Mr. Nissim will seek shelter in the peace with Egypt. This remains a crowning achievement.

It is also still effective in presenting Israel's case to the nations of the world. But it is no longer effective enough. Israel's image ahroad is typified today hy a recent cartoon showing Mr. Dayan, the driver, alighting from a car marked with the Star of David, and perched high on a mountain curve, with Mr. Begin in the hack, his arms folded, saying derislvely: "So who needs you? The steering wheel is locked anyway."

This may he thought unfair, But the cartoonist, Bill Mauldin, has not in the past heen known, to put it mildly, for his hostility towards Israel.

A colleague of Mr. Nissim's, Dr. Yosef Burg, has just offered him a formula calculated to touch up this abrasive image. Let the PLO cease to he the PLO, he suggested, taking a leaf from a former information minister, and in two or three years it might become a partner to peace talks. For his daring, the venerable Dr. Burg got spanked by the whole Cahinet, "doves" and "hawks" alike. Now all the publicity experts in the world will not supply Mr. Nissim with the tools needed to explain away such mexplicable silliness.

How then is Mr. Nissim to cope with the awesome challenge of his new task? The question has not been deemed worthy, of discussion by the Cahinet. Indeed the Cabinet has not even weighed the question whether the country needs a resurrected information ministry.

What mattered was only that the Liberals had to be "compensated" for the "loss" of the Treasury, and a ministry of information for Mr. Nissim looked like a good idea. This may he sound politics, but it is a hell of a way to run a country, and Mr. Nissim could spare himself the effort to ex-

Teachers waste ammunition

THE TEACHERS' current work sanctions, that do not seem to he ahating, have reduced the system of labour relations to a new level of absurdity. School-children and their harassed parents are heing victimized not over an important issue of principle over which the teachers' union feels it cannot yield, hut owing to an administrative muddle in the Ministry of Education which, however vexatious, is of less than earth-shaking consequence.

All the parties involved are contributing their hit to this imhroglio. The 150-strong financial section in the Ministry, though paid on the civil service scale, want a wage rise all the same, and staged a go-slow three months ago to get it.

Naftali Aloni, of the Teachers' Union, points out that it is unheard of for an employees' go-slow to sabotage the payment of wages to fellow-workers.

Instead of promptly slapping down a hack-to-work order, the Ministry — whose head, Zevulun Hammer, may have heen busy in the Cabinet with more historic subjects — let things drag, and got tied up with a complicated device for issuing pay "advances" to the teachers, pending a settlement with the paymasters. That arrangement was made in Octoher, for September salaries. Now advances are being made for October salaries; and the teachers are fed up. The advances are too small, they are obliged to take overdrafts at astronomical interest-rates.

The Ministry agreed to issue supplementary advances, hut now there are arguments as to who should get them. It appears that some teachers got paid twice over, which has made the Accountant-General fume. Others got paid too little — oddhall cases like teachers lately on a sahhatical and now hack fulltime, who are still getting advances on the part-time salaries they earned during their sahhatical.

Belatedly, the hack-to-work orders have heen issued to the financial staff, and matters should he straightened out before iong. Surely the representatives of the disputing sides can disentangie this confusion without halting classes up and down the country in mld-morning.

The teachers may, like other wage-earners today, be more peevish than usual, owing to the atmosphere of runaway inflation which eats into their resources. But their action is rendering poor service to their own cause. They have a serious confrontation pending, over their demand for wage parity with the engineers; and here a question of princlule is involved. Yet they waste the strike weapon over a futile issue that has no long-term implications.

The public is already exasperated with the teachers' walkout. Should their union deem it necessary to declare an all-out work stoppage in the course of time, they may find that most of the stock of goodwill for their case has expired.

AND SO. Jews are being used as scapegoats again.

I cannot interpret otherwise the recent poeltions taken hy Black leaders on the Mideast and Black-Jewish relations, And I am angered by how self-righteous and arrogant Black leaders sounded: "Jews must show more sensitivity and be prepared for more consuitation before taking positions contrary to the best interests of the Black community.

While I understand that such a statement comss from years of anger at active Jewish opposition to affirmative action, and how deeply Blacks were hurt hy this opposition to what was in our "best interests," Black leadsrship still eeems to be ignorant of the fact that Jews have been hurt by Black indifference to the fate of Israei.

I don't recall angry pronouncemente from Black ieadership when 18 Jews were killsd at Kiryat ahmona by Palestinian terrorists. I don't remember Black bands heid out in sympathy when 20 Jewish children were murdered at Ma'alot, where Palestinians heid a school of children hostage. When 81 Jews were killed in a Palestinian attack on a bus, Black leadership did not gather hefors the tsievleion eameras and microphones to say. "No! No! No! Not another Jew can be murdered on this earth."

Because Blacks have been slient while Jews continued to be murdered, I am appalled that they dare come forward now to self-

Arrogance is, bowever, a common fault of oppressed people when they believe that their status as victims gives them the advantage of moral superiority. But morality is not found in lecturing others on morality. Morality is painfully earned hy constant awareness of one's own limitations, mistakes and fragile humanity. Morality comes by eonstantly adjuring yourself, and not others, to "show more sensitivity."

IT IS an absence of sensitivity to point the finger at Israel'e relations with South Africa when Black leadership has failed to exemplify the least concern about the oppres-

The lack of Black sensitivity on matters of deep and ahlding concern to Jews has wounded Jewe as much as Jewish opposition to affirmative action has wounded us.

However, Black leadership not only wraps itself in a clock of moral excellence; it goes further and choosee sides in the Mideast conflict. I shouldn't have been surprised by this because, as Reverend Wyatt The Walker expressed it, 'The Palsstinians are the niggers of the Middie East."

murdered. But maybe Blacks have become so Western that we don't think it is 'to the best interests of the Black community" to care that there are still people in the world who want to kill Jews because they are Jews. But who in the course of Western civilization has ever cared when Jews were killed? Why, then, should Blacks be different?

Not heing different, Black leadership takes its stand for 'human rights and selfdetermination for Palestinians." This sounds reasonable, but something deep within me says that it is wrong to talk about Palestinian human rights as ione as Israeli children live with the prospect of death at Palestinian hands.

How can Black leadership even think about sslf-determination for people who attack children? To do so implicitly condones the murder of

BLACK LEADERSHIP should know about the murder of children, or have we forgotten the four children murdered in that Birmingham eburch in 1963? And surely we've forgotten that at the memorial services and rallies after the bombing, it was Jews, more so than other Americans, who stood besides us and Black leadership insults this very real part of Black history, not to mention insulting Jews, when it says. that Jewisb support for the Black struggle was given when it was "in their [Jews] best interest to do so." No, that is not true, because those Jews who supported, worked, and died in the civil rights movement remembered in their souls the ogroms in Russia, the Holocaust, the dying that is so constant in Israei. And because they remembsred, they made our struggle a part of their lives.

That Jews have not supported affirmative action does nothing to negate this. But this does not seem good enough for Black leadership, which takes the position that the support Jews gave in the past is to be denigrated now.

I CANNOT understand why Biack leadership lacks the simple humanity to express gratitude for past sup-port, as well as the anger we feel now in the face of Jewish conservatism. Instead, Black leadership has acted as if Jews were responsible for Andy, Young's-resignation. Thought Andy was responsible for
